KSRDPR VARSITY CONVOCATION TO BE HELD TOMORROW

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Gadag

KARNATAKA State Rural Development and Panchayat Raj (KSRDPR) University in Gadag will organise its third convocation on March 10.

Governor of Karnataka and Chancellor of Karnataka State Universities, Thawar Chand Gehlot will take part in the event which will begin at 9.30 am at Kaushalya Vikas Bhavan on the university's campus in Nagavi village.

Chancellor, Central Agriculture University, Imphal, chairman of Karnataka Science and Technology Academy in Bengaluru and former Director General of Indian Council of Agricultural Research Delhi, Dr Subbanna Ayyappan will be the chief guest. He will also deliver the convocation address.

Governor Gehlot will confer Honorary Doctorate Honoris Causa on Shivaji Kagnikar from Kattanbhavi in Belagavi district and AP Chandrashekhar of Kalalavadi village in Mysuru district.

Shivaji Kagnikar has been working with Jana Jagrana organisation which has been credited with starting night schools in remote areas and also for creating awareness about education and water conservation among the rural folk. He believes in Gandhian principles of frugal living and simplicity.

AP Chandrashekhar, a mechanical engineer and an agriculturist, has been practising organic farming for the last 40 years on a 13-acre land where nearly 4,000 species of medicinal plants have been cultivated. Many native plants and crops are grown on the land and several varieties have been brought from far off places.

India's Central Agricultural University Vice-Chancellor Subanna Aryapan speaks at the convocation of the Karnataka State Rural Development & Panchayat Raj University in Gadag on Friday.

Villages are lifeline of India'

'There are more than six lakh villages in India'

GADAG, DHAR

There are more than six lakh villages in India and 70% of people of the country live in them. Hence, villages are lifeline of our nation," said India's Central Agricultural University Vice-Chancellor Subanna Aryapan.

He was delivering speech at the third convocation of the Karnataka State Rural Development & Panchayat Raj University in Gadag on Friday.

He said, "here a speciality of our university is that its curriculum is not just sowing seeds and growing crops. It has many dimensions. Conservation, breeding and processing are important in agriculture. Graduation students of the Karnataka State Rural Development & Panchayat Raj University is moving forward towards a new dimension to higher education. Students should be the torch bearers for rural development. In addition to that, knowledge and skills need to be acquired with science, technology and innovation to provide solutions to day-to-day problems."

"Convocation will mark the centenary celebration of India's Independence. This year will also go to be the centennial generation. In such a scenario, there is a need for interventions such as climate change, environmental management, natural resources, population explosion, malnutrition, migration, etc. In this regard, continuous learning, earning for living and earning to learn should be a main motto of students."

AtmaNirbhar Bharat

Speaking on the occasion, Governor Thawar Chand Gehlot said, "The University will contribute for rural development through its various departments. It has given a new dimension to higher education. Students should pledge to serve the country. They have implemented many schemes for the development of agricultural sector in the country. The Government of India (AatmaNirbhar Bharat). "The dream of the Rural Development & Panchayat

Honorary doctorate conferred

Bangalore's Gautham and environmentalist Shekhar Kagankar who received honorary doctorate from Governor Thawar Chand Gehlot during the convocation of the Rural Development & Panchayat

Raj University held at the varsity in Gadag on Friday, was felicitated.

He drew attention in the programme by his simple attire. He was wearing a simple khadi white shirt, blue petka and a khadi coat.

Rural Development & Panchayat Raj University Vice-Chancellor Vishwanath Chatapalli suggested that the students should work to fulfill the dreams of parents and their own ambitions in the future. Gowtham programme was organized for the students of the university. All should strive to realize the dreams of parents.

Regrettably, Balakumar and others were present. A total of 100 students got certificates on 182 students and gold medals were presented to ten rank holders.
